

How to Use Glad Products When Traveling

Traveling soon? Glad can help you out! There are a couple of essential items everyone should have in their luggage. No, we're not talking about your toothbrush. We're talking about quart bags and gallon plastic bags, which, as we'll outline in the article below, have a lot of unexpected uses and can help you stay organized on your trip. So, scroll down to be right on your way to becoming an expert packer.

How to Use Quart Size Bags When Traveling

When it's time to pack, quart size bags can help you organize virtually everything in your luggage. But before you start filling your suitcase, it's always helpful to make a packing list. This not only helps you keep track of what additional items you need to buy, but it also lets you designate a quart bag for each category of items — toiletries, toys, snacks, documents and more.

And if you're planning on using quart size bags to bring liquids on a plane, Glad can help you with that, too. You can use Glad® Flex'N Seal™ Bags to keep liquids organized in your luggage and it also helps prevent leaks and the best part? It stretches to fit 30% more vs. Glad standard food bags.

Another option for storing liquids or toiletries is Glad® Press'N Seal™ Wrap, which creates an airtight seal and also seals to almost any surface, including itself, making handy custom-sized packages. Now that's a seal that sticks with you during traveling.

How to Store Liquids on a Plane

TSA rules state that liquids must be in a clear quart size bag. Luckily, here at Glad, we've got all the quart size bags you'll need to stay organized, as well as TSA compliant.

For more information on what you can and can't pack in your checked or carry-on luggage, check the TSA website.

How to Use Large Plastic Bags When Traveling

Not everything in your luggage is going to squeeze into a quart bag. That's where gallon plastic bags come in.

Glad® Flex'N Seal™ Gallon Size can provide countless practical solutions while traveling. If you're flying, gallon plastic bags can hold bulky electronics, socks and underwear, sandals and more. You can use it to store liquids, but in that case, you should check it. Another great idea is to use Glad® Food Bags as a dirty clothes bag or laundry bag to keep clean clothes fresh on your trip.

Also, if you're planning to pack your sneakers or fancy shoes, 4-gallon plastic trash bags are the perfect fit for your needs. Check out our Glad® Small Garbage Bags!

If you and your family decide to go on a road trip, large plastic bags are the easiest way to keep the car clean and tidy. Glad® Food Storage Gallon Bags are great for holding lunches and snacks, but can also be turned into a car trash can in seconds!

Having a car trash bag in your car or a rental can provide some peace of mind for dealing with car trash. Our Glad® with Clorox™ Small Drawstring Trash Bags are also great because you can hang them on the headrest and keep trash safe during the whole ride. Easy to dispose of and easy to replace! Bottomline, having a car garbage bag can make any road trip a little smoother. Find some useful tips in this article about how to use bags when traveling.

Plus, they keep your car smelling fresh between pit stops because these also eliminate food and bacterial odors. So, be sure to keep a couple extra bags in that glove box!
